Welcome to the Design and Informatics Wiki

This wiki is for the Design and Informatics Research Programme. The Programme seeks to identify and encourage new collaborations between the areas of design and informatics. It is focused around the School of Informatics and the School of Design in Edinburgh College of Art, at the University of Edinburgh, but it also looks more widely to develop collaborations with other parts of ECA and the University more widely that have relationships with these areas.

This is a new Programme and will develop and change rapidly: we anticipate a rich programme of activities such as seminars, workshops, sandpits, exhibitions, etc. Its focus is research collaboration, but this will not stop us from investigating teaching links and other kinds of interactions.

This is our wiki – why not add some pages, edit some of the material, add links, etc.?
